

Works in Progress

Ants, ants and more ants! That's right, ants. Watch them build, watch them work, watch them move and transform the Lehman Art Gallery's newest exhibit starting today.

Artist Yukinori Yanagi has assembled a display comprised of the nations of the world attached to an ant farm. The ants just do their thing, moving pieces of the flags from point to another. And you thought humans were the only ones altering the environment!—Check out the ants everyday as they completely transform the exhibit.

Oh yeah, the exhibit also features a giant treadmill.
